The editor of the Louisville Journal repeats the ridiculous assertion that the Democracy of Pennsylvania refused to endorse the Kansas-Nebraska Bill. He publishes the rejected resolution, but takes good care not to publish what was passed. After a committee has prepared resolution it is not common to adopt one on the same subject, with no difference of sentiment. The Democracy of Pennsylvania are a good deal sounder on this subject than the editor of the Louisville Journal, yet the latter scribbles about the Abolitionists of the Pennsylvania Democrats.

What has the editor of the Journal to say about the Republican party? It is the party in favor of the South, is it not? It is opposed to the Democratic party, and the Democratic party is Abolition or Free Soil; of course the Republicans are on the other side? The Democrats being opposed to the Kansas-Nebraska bill, according to the editor of the Journal, the Republicans must be in favor of it.

What a ridiculous mistake the whole country has made! The two parties in Pennsylvania themselves misunderstood the whole business. The Republicans charge that the Democrats are in favor of the Nebraska swindle, and deplore the result as the defeat of "freedom," when the editor of the Louisville Journal, Sam's prophet, reveals the fact that it is just the other way. What is remarkably comical is, all the Democratic papers in Pennsylvania have been defending the Nebraska bill, and supporting the men who voted for it, whilst the Republicans and Know-Nothings have been denouncing them as doughties, enemies of freedom, allies of the slaveocracy, etc.

The editor of the Journal ought to go on and correct the indiscernible blunder both parties have fallen into. Perhaps this is the mission the senior editor of the Louisville Journal is now upon in the East. Just think of his exhorting the brethren in a Know-Nothing lodge, thus—

Brethren, Americans, sons of the sires of '76—bear me for my cause, and be silent that ye may hear. Our father, Sam, has sent me to reveal to you that you are in favor of the Kansas-Nebraska bill; that you are the national men; that you are the supporters of the fugitive slave law and the equal rights of the South in the Territories. [Wondernent and bewilderment amongst the brethren.] On the other hand, men and brethren, the Democrats are opposed to the Nebraska bill; they, not you, are the friends of "freedom," alias free-mugrodom. They are Free-soilers and Abolitionists.

This speech, the emanation of what is published almost daily in the Louisville Journal, would certainly astound the brethren beyond measure in the Keystone State. It would produce such a noise and confusion as these States have not heard of lately. Certainly the parties in Pennsylvania have a most grievous misunderstanding.

The editor of the Louisville Journal supposes, moreover, that Forney fixed up the resolutions of the Democratic Convention so as to dodge the Nebraska bill, and he is the right bower of President Pierce at the same time. So the President's friends want the party to dodge the support of the President's policy. Another queer affair; the President conspiring against his own policy, or against himself.

But there is no end to queer things, and we shall expect soon to see it made out that Chase, Giddings, Sibley, Seward & Co. are the national men of the North, and that after all, Douglass, Cas, Bright, Piero, Guthrie & Co. are Abolitionists and Free-soilers. There is no telling what a party is from what it does or says, the editor of the Louisville Journal being judge.

The World Stirring.

This world of ours can't jog along in peace. There are too many restless people in it; there is something to gain and nothing to lose.

Europe has taken up the old trade war, which furnished aliment to the craving appetite for excitement.

She is likely to have enough of it before she is done. The old hereditary enemies, England and France, are united in a struggle that promises employment for years to come. They have not had time to fall out yet, having been too busy with the Czar, but the Entente cordiale will not last.

John Bull's jealousy will not stand everlastingly. The glory of the victories so far has failed to the French, and the nephew of his uncle will reap the honor of complete success, if it be allowed.

They will be friends while there is glory enough for both, and hard work to keep it.

It is impossible to foresee what combinations are to follow. Austria, Prussia, and the lesser powers will be involved sooner or later in the contest. As to the Czar, poor fellow, is he fighting for? It would puzzle him to tell. In the general melee, his chances for independence are sterner enough. Perhaps he thinks half a dozen masters are better than one, as they may fall out amongst themselves, and he may thereby gain some freedom.

Whilst this old game of war is playing there is not much room for games. A new element may come in, perhaps. The revolutionists of Europe may strike for freedom, often won and lost.

Spain is in a transition state—not knowing what a day may bring forth.

Religious creeds have heretofore had something to do with European wars; but now we see the Protestant, the Catholic, and the Turk against the Greek Church. The Czar pretends to be fighting for his religion, England and France for civilization, and the Turk for independence, which he has lost and can never regain.

The contest is one of ambition, where men die for glory that other people get.

On that continent, Mexico is in a state of anxiety; uncertain what to look for next.

Central America is likely to be revolutionized by the infusion of a new and more energetic race.

The United States, an insipid place! We have no war and no chance for restless spirits. We are waiting on the slow motion of manifest destiny, the task of which the officers of the government will take measure to bring the villains engaged in these transactions to justice.

Pittsburg Post, 22.

should know how he stands. His Mr. Derby, our class of religious sentiments for North Louisiana and another for South Louisiana? Dr. Harmon also stated that the blood-stained checks of Native Americans when a Mr. V. of New Orleans, offered to transfer the foreign slaves for a price. The Whigs offered $1,000, which he declined. "I am not a thief," said he, "and gave $1,500." This Mr. V., he said, controlled some twelve or thirteen groceries. Are these things so?

THE riots at the late election in this city, were of the same character as those of this city, and originated with the same party, who took possession of the polls and insulted and abused voters, as they did here. They deny their guilt in the same way. They saw no disturbance at the polls. The police—all know-notings—acted just as they did here, as far as we can see from all accounts.

GRAND ASCENSION.—It will be seen from the advertisements this morning, that Mons. and Mad. Godard, the celebrated aeronauts, will make an ascension in this city, from the lot on First street, between Walnut and Chestnut. Of course everybody will crowd to see the air-ship, and no doubt many would like to visit the upper regions. The ascension is to take place on Saturday next.

THE STAR MINSTRELS.—Owing to the inclemency of the weather, Mozart Hall was not as fully thronged last evening as on the night previous. To-night the Minstrels perform in this city for the last time. Let all go who love good music and good dancing.

Dick Sliter and Bill Birch are "trumps," and are sure to draw a crowd. "Blæbæt" is the after-piece to-night.

NOT A MINSTREL.—The "chain-gang," or prisoners in the Cincinnati jail, held an election among themselves on election day. They numbered 5,000, and voted as follows: Chase, 27; Trimble, 6; Medill, 2. Mr. Chase, upon being informed of the fact, said it was another evidence of the fallacy of the theological doctrine of total depravity.

JAS. GREGORY, lumber merchant, on Jefferson street, between Preston and Jackson, has just received a large shipment of superior Laths, which he is selling off very low in order to close them out before cold weather. He has also a large stock of dry pine lumber, which he is selling at much reduced prices for cash. 99 dlm

EDWARD ANDERSON & FISHER, Third street, opposite the Democrat, have on hand a supply of good butter this morning.

THE THEATRE.—The rain last night prevented a large attendance; still, a very fair house was present. The performance of Clara was tame and spiritless—very. To be sure, there is very little action in the play, but more energy in the chief character would enliven the others, and bring out the points, of which there are some good ones. We regret to see what appeared to us like a return of Miss Kimberly's part, to that affects the mother who had laid aside; her intonation is very disagreeable, and she should endeavor to enter more earnestly and entirely into the spirit of the character she is endeavoring to personate, and think less of her manner. To-night she will play "Camille" or the Fate of a Coquette. This is one of her best characters, and we expect to see a full house, whether the weather permits or not.
